On The Notion Of Over-Fitting August 18, 2018. Recently, on a Quantopian thread, the debate touched over-fitting stock trading strategies. I tend to have a different point of view on this subject than most since I find the very definition of strategy over-fitting as something that describes very little of what is.

Algorithmic trading is a method of executing a large order (too large to fill all at once) using automated pre-programmed trading instructions accounting for variables such as time, price, and volume to send small slices of the order (child orders) out to the market over time. They were developed so that traders do not need to constantly watch a stock and repeatedly send those slices out manually.
