In chemistry, resonance or mesomerism is a way of describing delocalized electrons within certain molecules or polyatomic ions where the bonding cannot be expressed by one single Lewis structure. A molecule or ion with such delocalized electrons is represented by several contributing structures (or forms) (also variously known as resonance structures (or forms), canonical structures, or, in ...

Learn more about these metrics Article Views are the COUNTER-compliant sum of full text article downloads since November 2008 (both PDF and HTML) across all institutions and individuals. These metrics are regularly updated to reflect usage leading up to the last few days. The Altmetric Attention Score is a quantitative measure of the attention that a research article has received online.

Besides inhibition of the electron transport chain, aflatoxins are also good carcinogens. Consequently, the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC) of the World Health Organization in 1987 classified aflatoxins and, in 1993, it classified aflatoxin B 1 as Group 1 carcinogen []. Since then, aflatoxins concentration has become one of the most critical indicators of food and feed toxicity.

Sex biases are widespread in nature and represent a fundamental component of sexual selection and population biologyâ€”but at which point in life history do these biases emerge? We report a detailed individual-based demographic analysis of an intensively studied wild bird population to evaluate origins of sex biases and their consequences on mating strategies and population dynamics.
