The business fable of The Chicken and the Pig is about commitment to a project or cause. When producing a dish made of ham and eggs, the pig provides the ham which requires his sacrifice and the chicken provides the eggs which are not difficult to produce. Thus the pig is really committed in that dish while the chicken is only involved, yet both are needed to produce the dish.

Saying goodbye to Marigold, our favorite Buff Orpington ever. We were a host once again this year for Seattle Tilth's Chicken Coop and Urban Farm Tour, and one of the main questions would-be chicken keepers voiced was what to do with older chickens after they stop laying, or slow way down? The numbers vary by breed and individual, but most chickens lay really well the first year, slow a bit ...

I don't know anything about roosting chickens, but I do know a bit about trade theory. Over the past 200 years, debates about trade have occurred on two levels. Academics insist that unilateral free trade is the best options. However the "every serious people" (VSP) who conduct real world trade negotiations act as if open [!]

Bananas are the most popular fruit in the world, with more than 100 billion consumed annually. [1] Bananas have been sold in North America since the late 1800s, although the popular variety at that time is not the one we enjoy today. [2] In 1890, a disease spread throughout banana-growing regions of Latin America and the Caribbean and destroyed many banana farms.
