Some argue that the Youth League simply read the mood of the party, sensed that dissatisfaction was mounting against Mbekiâ€™s aloof and centralising style of leadership, and positioned itself on the likely winning side. This was essential if the League was to continue to receive patronage from the senior ANC in future.

The African National Congress Youth League (ANCYL) is the youth wing of the African National Congress. Its foundation in 1944 by Anton Muziwakhe Lembede (1914-1947), Ashley Peter Mda, Nelson Mandela, Walter Sisulu and Oliver Tambo marked the rise of a new generation of leadership of South Africa's black African population.
